Additional copiers arrive at Booth

By MELANIE McCLAIN
Staff writer

Students will no longer have to carry precisely a nickel to use only three copy machines at Booth Library since 11 new coin-operated copiers arrived at the library Monday, said Dean Lanham, dean of library services.

Lanham said the library's new copiers should be ready for use by Wednesday or Thursday, adding more than two weeks with only a handful of copiers to serve the library.

Until the new copiers are installed, the library has three copiers, which accept only nickels.

"Right now we only have three, and we are very dissatisfied in this field," Lanham said. "We've just been limping along until the new copiers arrive."

The university originally ordered 11 copiers from Xerox Co. in time to have them running by early this month. The copiers, however, would take only nickels, forcing the university to accept them until new machines could be ordered.

Although students have had to use nickels only, Lanham said, the library did not receive many complaints, despite lines of more than six or seven students during the library's evening hours.

"The nickels have been a nuisance, but we have not been bombarded by complaints," Lanham said.

Lanham said that 11 coin copy machines in Booth Library and many other copy machines on campus were removed over Christmas break because the company from which the uni-

Panther's liquor inquiry continues

By TRAVIS SPENCER
City editor

An investigation is continuing into a recent liquor-code compliance check at Panther's Lounge that netted seven arrests Friday night, said Brian Bower, Charleston city attorney.

Seven individuals were charged with alcohol-related offenses Friday night after they reportedly were drinking at Panther's, 1421 Fourth St., which is without a liquor license until Feb. 25.

A police report said the individuals were charged with possession of open alcohol in a public place.

Those arrested Friday are: Willard L. Hemsworth, 21, from the University of Illinois; Richard L. Charboneau, 36, of Mattoon; William E. Haywood, 21, 2500 Nantucket; Troyt A. Cox, 25, of Greenup; Jimmy R. Hunt, 24, of Oakland;

Layzell to be a senate no-show

By DAVE HOSICK
Administration editor

A scheduled visit to the Faculty Senate today by Board of Governors Chancellor Thomas Layzell has been canceled so Layzell can meet with legislators in Springfield.

Layzell was scheduled to meet with the senate today to discuss a bill in the state legislature that calls for the reorganization of the Board of Governors and Board of Regents with individual governing bodies for each of the eight universities in the two systems.

"The chancellor has expressed interest in meeting with the senate as soon as possible, but he has been asked to go to Springfield to meet with some members of the legislative subcommittees on the governance issue," said Senate Vice Chairman Gary Foster.

Foster said Layzell might attempt to hold a teleconference with the senate soon rather than attending a meeting in person.

Foster said although the bill is a reality in the Legislature, there is no urgency yet to the issue.

"It has become apparent that maybe this bill is not going to move as quickly as we anticipated," Foster said. "The senate will, however, stay on top of the bill and remain diligent and focused."

Since the BOG voted not to take a position on the governance issue yet, Foster said, the senate "could identify that as a judicious course of action."

Also at the meeting, the board will discuss further a proposal to change the smoking policy on campus.

The proposed policy asks for the senate's support on one of two policies. The first would ban smoking in all university vehicles as well as in all university facilities.

Foster said the first option would theoretically ban smoking in all university facilities, including O'Brien Stadium.

The second option would enforce a campus-wide ban on smoking in all facilities and anywhere on campus.

Freshman English major Heather Bravner scrapes snow off of her car Monday morning. Snow fell in the area late Sunday night and early Monday morning.

Light flurries to continue

By TRAVIS SPENCER
City editor

Snow flurries may fall during the rest of the week, but local weather observer Dalias Price doesn't predict a heavy snow fall accumulating in the Charleston area.

"We're experiencing a back side of a storm that brought in flurries," Price said. "We received an inch of snow, but it was light and fluffy and didn't amount to much."

The temperatures will reach to the 30s later this week, leaving nighttime lows in the teens. With the low temperatures, Price said that if precipitation is going to arrive in the area, it will be light flurries.

"This was a delightful little storm," Price said. "There were no hazards on the roads and very little drifting. It didn't warm up and melt much to produce slick spots."

He said the high temperature for Monday was 24 degrees, with a low of 17 degrees.

"It was a fairly narrow range of temperatures," Price

College lets alums re-enroll for free

GENEVA, N.Y. (AP) — Looking back on his college days, lawyer Frank Cegelski relives Frisbee on the quad and winter afternoons curled up with a book in a cubby-hole study overlooking frosty Seneca Lake.

Entwined in those fond memories is the realization that the university experience could have been so much better. If only his anxiety about getting his career on track could have been brushed aside.

Now Cegelski, Class of '83, is being offered what he considers a chance to "kick back and enjoy college for its own sake, rather than saying 'Hey, how's this going to look on my resume?'" He's re-enrolling, at age 34, at his alma mater.

At no charge.

Beginning in March, Hobart and William Smith Colleges are inviting alumni who graduated at least five years ago to take tuition-free classes, for as many semesters as they want, at the scenic liberal-arts campus on the slopes above this Finger Lakes town — provided there's room among undergraduates.

The Graduate Attende Program, apparently the first of its kind in the nation, could prove a shrewd marketing ploy. The private colleges recently started a four-year drive to raise $75 million, and alumni contributions could spell the difference.

"I don't know of any program that has offered this kind of a compact with its alumni. I think it is unique," said Noah Brown of the National University Continuing Education Association in Washington, D.C.

Israelis stunned by loss of soldiers

JERUSALEM (AP) — Stunned, embittered and enraged, Israel buried more young soldiers in single day Monday than it had in over a decade.

The government grappled with how best to deal with 52 deaths the past four months at the hands of Islamic extremists, including 19 in Sunday's suicide bombing.

In a rare televised address, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said clear boundaries must be drawn between the Jewish state and Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"We want to reach a division between us and you. We do not want the majority of the Jewish population, 98 percent of whom live inside sovereign Israel and united Jerusalem, to be vulnerable to terrorism," he said.

"We will divide between us and you and not according to the basis of the pre-1967 borders," Rabin said.

Television reports said the government was weighing a security defense border between Israel and the West Bank, under Israeli military rule since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Rabin said a frontier heavily patrolled by soldiers and police could be established within months.

The idea brought immediate condemnation from Aharon Dombé, spokesman for the estimated 140,000 Jewish settlers in the occupied territories, saying the government was abandoning them.

Couple tried to trade woman for drugs

HOBART, Ind. (AP) — A couple allegedly tried to trade a woman and her car for cocaine, but the supplier was only interested in the car, police said.

"The guy says 'Look here, I want the car, but I don't want nothing to do with that woman in the back seat,'" said police Lt. Leo Finnerty.

Elaine Tindle, 35, and Douglas C. Hickman, 46, were each charged with criminal confinement and carjacking, Finnerty said. Hickman was in jail in lieu of $4,000 bail and Tindle remained at large Monday, police said.

The woman told police she saw Tindle, an acquaintance, the night of Jan. 2 and offered her a ride home. When they arrived at Tindle's apartment, Tindle and Hickman allegedly handcuffed the woman and put duct tape over her mouth, Finnerty said.

The woman said she was beaten for three hours before being placed in her car and driven to Gary, Finnerty said.

versity leases the machines thought Eastern was moving to a debit card system.

The debit card system, which would allow students to use their Eastern IDs to pay for copies with a university account, was recently postponed pending the results of a fact-finding study being done by the university's Debit Card Committee.

The committee delayed the system's installation indefinitely after discovering the university's current student IDs were not compatible with the system.

The debit card system, as part of the first phase of the committee's plan, will be installed on the new copiers once it is approved by the committee.

The next step will involve putting debit-card technology elsewhere on campus such as the Union Bookstore, McDonald's, residence hall laundry facilities and vending machines.

Charleston police conducted the compliance check at 10:55 p.m.

Jason Morton, 18, of Charleston, said he witnessed nearly 10 police officers enter the bar to check for violations of the bar's liquor license suspension.

"They walked right in with their riot gear on and the whole bit," Morton said Sunday.

Mayor Dan Cougill, acting as liquor commissioner, suspended Panther's liquor license from Dec. 27 to Feb. 25, after he found the establishment guilty of seven liquor code violations. Cougill ruled Panther's guilty of five counts of allowing underage customers into the bar and two counts of serving underage drinkers.

Panther's owner Mike Bickers apparently had scheduled dancers to perform at Panther's Friday night since he couldn't legally serve alcohol, Morton said. The seven topless dancers that performed on a stage were from Champagne, he added.

Bower said the dancers' performance could be legal under the city code.

"There is no city ordinance that says thou shall not exotic dance," Bower said.

However, Bower said, because he not finished reading the police report, he cannot comment conclusively on the investigation.

Charleston Police Chief He Steidinger was unavailable for comment Monday. Panther's owner Mike Bickers was also unavailable.

added. "The sun broke out a time or two through the persistent cloud cover."

According to Price, East Central Illinois lies between two snow belts that are producing a large amount of snow.

"Right now we're sandwiched in between two heavy snow belts," Price said.

Moderate snow was scattered over parts of the eastern third of the nation Monday, icing highways and closing schools.

Light snow fell as far south as northwestern South Carolina and the northern counties of Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

Along the Ohio Valley, 3 to 4 inches of snow fell on northern Kentucky. And up to 5 inches fell in parts of West Virginia in the central Appalachians.

Light snow also fell along most of the Great Lakes and upper Atlantic states. North-central Ohio had accumulated up to 17 inches of snow since Saturday and snow drifts were up to 8 feet deep in parts of Licking County.

A winter warning was also in effect for the mountains of Southern California, with up to 2 feet of snow possible in some areas.

In the Sierra Nevada, 14 inches of snow fell at the Mammoth ski area.

During the weekend, slippery highways were blamed for six deaths in Ohio and seven in Indiana.

New subdivisions hit Charleston outskirts

JAMIE RILEY
Staff writer

Arrowhead Ridge. Deer Run. The new subdivisions in the Charleston area seem to be popping up everywhere around the outskirts town.

New-home construction in the Charleston area seems to be focusing on homes with values exceeding $100,000, although at least one developer is constructing homes for less than $100,000.

The City of Charleston issued 61 home permits in 1994, up from 44 in 1993 and 34 in 1992.

In the Arrowhead Ridge Subdivision, south of Harrison Avenue and west of Illinois Route 130, eight homes in the $120,000 to $160,000 range are under construction, with a ninth home scheduled to start soon, said Steve Drake, president of Drake Homes, the subdivision developer.

In the Deer Run subdivision at the intersection of Fourth Street and University Drive, construction on a model home is expected to be completed by Feb. 1, according to Philip Perino, president of PER Corp., the land developing company.

Deer Run is being constructed in phases, with 38 homes in the $100,000 to $275,000 range in the first phase, Perino said. The company has several lot deposits and three contracts for homes to be constructed this spring.

A house on Copperfield Lane in a new-house subdivision called The Fields is under construction. The subdivision is geared toward homes under $100,000 and is one in a series of subdivisions being built in the Charleston area.

However, one developer seems to be bucking the current trend of building higher-end homes.

Chuck White, co-owner of White Development Company, said he believes the market for larger, more expensive homes is declining.

"There is a softening market for larger homes," White said. "There's still a demand for the larger homes, but not like it was two years ago."

White Development is the developer of The Fields, a new-home subdivision on Illinois Route 130 south of Lincoln Avenue, where 14 homes are already occupied. White said most homes in The Fields will cost less than $100,000.

"The market that most of us have been catering to for several years was the larger homes," White said. "What we did was switched to a lower market we felt was being neglected. Everyone has been concentrating on the larger homes."

Perino said with growing industry in the area, including Mattoon, new physician recruitment at Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center and the administrative staff at Eastern, there is still a large market for higher-end homes.

"From the market research we did, we think there's a market for it, with the industry and the university," Perino said. "With the deposits and the contracts we have, we think we were right."

Stephanie Higgins, a physician recruiter at Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center, said physician recruitment is an ongoing process at the hospital. In 1995, the hospital expects to bring in about four new physicians, possibly more.

Higgins said part of the recruitment job is helping the new physicians find homes in the area.

"We work with (the physicians) to find new homes," Higgins said. "They usually look at homes (with values) anywhere from $125,000 to sometimes $250,000."

"They are looking at the higher-end homes."

Peter Barr, Consolidated Communications spokesperson, said the telecommunications company based in Mattoon has hired at least a half dozen senior-level executives in the last year. He said the company's relocation plan helps put new executives in contact with local realtors.

Council petitions food service policy

KEAGAN BRANHAM
Staff writer

A policy requiring students to walk outside to get to their residence hall food service has members of the Lawson Hall Council upset.

Sara Leinbach, chairwoman of the Lawson Hall Improvements and Fundraising Committee, circulated a petition on two floors of Lawson Hall and collected about 60 signatures in support of a change in the policy.

Lawson Hall and Taylor Hall are linked by a dining hall, as are Andrews and Thomas halls. Each hall serves a different entree at each meal.

The new policy, which took effect in October, requires students to walk outside if they prefer the entree being served at the hall opposite the hall they live in.

The petition says students should not have "to be inconvenienced just so that the dining service employees don't have to deal with people going through the cafeteria to go in the other line."

Students who sign the petition ask that the policy be changed and that action "be taken quickly."

Leinbach said she will continue to circulate the petition in Lawson and the other residence halls in the South Quad, which includes Andrews, Taylor and Thomas halls.

She said students from Taylor and Lawson halls have complained of the inconvenience of the new policy.

The petition contends that walking outside during the winter is potentially unhealthy.

"This is because most of us don't come straight from class to lunch and therefore go outside without protection from the weather," the petition states. "Either that or we have to deal with wearing a big winter coat while standing in line and having to try not to spill anything on it or make sure no one else spills anything on it."

Members of the Lawson Hall Council will bring the petition before Jodi Horn, food service coordinator, this week, Leinbach said.

Horn was unavailable for comment.

Linda White, supervisor for Taylor Hall food service, declined to comment about the petition.

The article also reported incorrectly that Ryan Abbot, a member of the fraternity, allegedly took $200 from the cash register of a Champaign tavern. Abbot allegedly took only $100.

Water quality, senate respect may improve

For many years, Eastern students have complained about the quality of water in the Charleston area.

These complaints were given credence when a study conducted on water in Mattoon and Charleston found high levels of lead and other minerals.

Editorial

All students take into consideration, however, is simply how bad the water tastes.

Student Government Vice President for Student Affairs Michelle Gaddini may have the answer to student's grievances about Charleston's water supply by researching the possibility of installing water purification machines in residence halls.

Residence Hall Association members have said they support the idea, as students have described how much they hate Charleston water.

With this new service, students would be able to attain purified water from their hall machines for a small amount of money.

According to Gaddini, students have frequently complained about the quality of the water, stating it as "terrible." Gaddini herself said she "frequently found particles and debris floating in her water."

While quality of water on this campus may not be as important an issue as establishing diversity, it is one that all students are affected by. So by bringing this problem before the Student Senate, Gaddini is speaking on behalf of the student body. In other words, she is doing her job.

Students vote to have concerns like this brought forth to a body which can make something happen. Unfortunately, students' voices are rarely heard within the senate.

Gaddini's idea is one many students living in residence halls could benefit from.

By pooling their efforts together, students would be able to have a choice of the water they drink.

Until then, students who want to drink water that tastes good will have to drive or walk to the local grocery stores and spend a lot of money for a limited amount of water.

Magazine promotes stereotypes for money

If you have seen "Animal House" or one of its many worthless clones - "Campus Man," "Back to School" to name two offenders - then you know the stereotype.

College students emerge from their alcoholic haze only long enough to jump into bed with a bosomy co-ed whose only role in life (and the movie) is to give it up to a man.

Or, as "deep" college movies like "Higher Learning" show, students are defined by their cause.

Aside from the fact there's actually a major called "social justice," I also learned all the above stereotypes by reading "U." magazine.

A quick look through The Daily Eastern News' files shows the magazine, which began as a compilation of news from the nation's colleges, has mutated into a publication intent on pandering to the worst tastes of my generation.

With a growing readership of 6.5 million, it seems to be an effective strategy. If readership, which translates into advertiser dollars, is a goal.

I scored the January/February issue's articles according to content: S for sex, A for drinking or alcohol, N for referring to nudity or sexual organs, JO for articles only "U." editors care about or for those articles that pander to an advertiser, and BS for stories containing extreme liberalism.

Five articles or photos ranked an N. Three ranked an A. Two ranked an S. Six ranked a BS.

Worthy of special mention is the story John Wayne Bobbitt showing a female reporter his penis. (Page 14). Isn't President Clinton getting sued for doing the same thing?

"Rebel Yale," also on Page 14, scored in the S, N and BS categories, a remarkable feat.

Two articles scored a JO, and the four-page "Capture the Nike Spirit" section (PP. 4-5 and 36-37) scored a not only a JO, but a Joycelyn Elders Citation of Merit with Oak-Leaf Cluster. Apparently the main criteria in this contest was how clearly the judges could make out the Nike shoes in the ads, er, photos.

Readers don't sit through ethics classes like journalists do, but readers still know the quickest way for a publica-naked.

That's only a quick summation of the magazine's blemishes, but the real problem is more than a single article or issue. It's a systemic disease of single-viewpoint reporting and tabloid-style pandering that is alienating readers in droves.

African Americans are the most at-risk readers, as those in the business peg them, because they are depicting the most rapidly. I wonder why?

Out of 35 photos in the Nike photo contest, none had a black man or woman. Instead, the photos were of the same kind of white-bread, buffed out youths that make MTV a trip through an anatomical dreamland.

Elsewhere two articles have pictures of African Americans, though it depicts them as basketball players and as a sexually harassing professor - the athlete and the criminal.

It's almost like watching prime-time television.

"U." magazine could be the seminal public affairs magazine of our generation. Colleges are the hotbeds of many of the debates taking place in modern society, particularly political correctness.

Writers and editors could fill pages with intelligently written, well-researched, two-sided reporting, rather than the mere sprinkling we get each issue.

However, the average reader doesn't think about content or do a careful analysis of reporting, ethics and bias. He or she probably can't tell exactly what should be changed about the magazine.

Instead they do what a friend of mine did. They just toss it aside and say, "I don't read it. It's a piece of crap."

Hair salon is being labeled as catering to black students only

Dear editor:

I am writing in response to the letter which appeared in the Jan. 11 edition of The Daily Eastern News regarding the hair salon.

First of all, one should not assume anything until all of the details and facts are gathered and compiled together. The impression that the writer received was incorrect. The salon is not strictly for African American students. It may be geared toward African American students, but who is to say that its patronage is limited only to African American students.

It will be up to you whether or not the salon will be labeled "strictly for African Americans." The choice will be left up to you to find how it can benefit you.

As for the survey, let's be realistic. If it was made available to all full-time Eastern students, the minority students at Eastern would be out-voted. An example of such a survey would be the spring concerts.

Who are the majority of entertainers seen here at Eastern? Why? Because the minorities are out-voted. Most events here are funded by the university, and are geared toward the majority (being white), so why not fund the salon which will be geared toward the minority?

Why does the Black Student Union have to fund the salon? The idea doesn't "seem unfair" to me because I can write a list of things that are unfair here at Eastern pertaining to African American students.

The voice of the African American students is so small sometimes it cannot be heard when it is heard, someone will muffle it.

Last note pending: How will local hair salons lose business if they never received any business from the majority of African American students? Can someone answer that question for me?

Candidate supports funding

By PHILLIP HARTMAN
Staff writer

The second candidate for the position of university and governmental affairs liaison said he would push for more funding from the state and try to remodel campus buildings.

David Starrett, chief executive officer of Advocacy Associates — a governmental affairs organization in Springfield — told a group of students and faculty at the BOG Room of Booth Library that he has the expertise to lobby on behalf of Eastern.

The liaison will act as a lobbyist and should have experience in the state Legislature. The new lobbyists will also play a key role in developing an alumni network to gain Eastern power in the capital, said Jill Nilsen, special assistant to the president.

David Starrett

Starrett received his bachelor's degree in political science and sociology from the University of Illinois at Chicago in 1987. He led and managed the Illinois Student Association from 1986 to 1991, and has been employed by Advocacy Associates for three years.

If hired, Starrett said he will work with all levels of the Eastern community.

"I would work with the faculty through their union and with students through their representative bodies," Starrett said. Starrett said he has experience dealing with the Legislature and knows how to respond to campus interests.

rett said.

Starrett said if the proposed breakup of the Board of Governors does occur and state universities become self-governing, Eastern will need a lobbyist to help the school remain competitive.

A bill in the Legislature is calling for the replacement of the Board of Governors and Board of Regents with individual governing bodies for the eight universities in the two systems.

"Two crucial things to do if a breakup occurred would be to get a larger piece of the (education budget) pie or to create a larger pie," Starrett said.

"If the breakup of the BOG does occur, it might be the ideal time to push for legislation placing students on university boards of trustees," he added.

Car hit in campus parking lot

Police have no suspects in an incident of car damage that took place sometime between 10:30 p.m. Saturday and 12:50 p.m. Sunday.

Brandi West, 20, reported that her car was struck by another car sometime after she parked it Saturday in parking lot E. Damage to the car was located in front of and behind the rear tire on the driver's side of the vehicle.

In other city and campus police reports:

• James Flynn, of Charleston, reported to Charleston police that someone stole an AM/FM stereo cassette player from his vehicle sometime on either Jan. 16 or 17 at 25 C St. The police report said the radio was valued at $300.

• Tracy Fuller, 22, reported that his book bag and coat were stolen between 1:30 and 2 p.m. Saturday from the third floor of Thomas Hall.

The items were valued at $180, according to the report.

• Carrie Braba, 20, reported the passenger side mirror of her car was pulled loose from the car's frame sometime between 2 p.m. and 7:15 p.m. Wednesday in parking lot E.

No other damage was done to the vehicle.

Committee to explain hike

By HEIDI KEIBLER
Student government editor

The Tuition Review Committee will meet today to put the finishing touches on a detailed presentation to acquaint students with the need for tuition hikes.

The committee will meet at 4:30 p.m. in the President's Conference Room of Old Main.

The presentation is scheduled to go before the Student Senate on Feb. 8. It will explain sources of funding for universities, illustrate the need for additional funding at Eastern and define the various types of tuition hikes.

Committee Chairman Jason Anselment said today's meeting will be devoted to assigning roles for the presentation to each committee member and "brushing up on areas that are a little gray."

Anselment said students will be the ones delivering the presentation.

"Even though we've got a diverse representation on the committee, we want students delivering to students," he said.

Committee members Amy Levine, Matt Thrun, Bryan Gutraj and Anselment will be delivering the presentation.

Anselment said the committee is taking the presentation to the senate before any other organizations because "it is the students' main representative body."

"We'll take questions from them that might be indicative of what the average student might ask concerning moderate and consistent tuition increases over the next five to six years," he said.

The committee will then take the presentation to any organization that is interested in hearing it, Anselment said.

Career workshops to aid students

By KAREN WOLDEN
Activities editor

To prepare students for February's job fair, Eastern's Career Planning and Placement Center is hosting two workshops this week.

At noon today "Resumes and Cover Letters Made Easy" will be presented in the Charleston-Mattoon Rooms of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The seminar will demonstrate how to prepare a resume, show different types of resumes and teach the advantages and disadvantages of various styles, said Warren Kistner, associate director of the center, who will present the seminar.

Students who are starting to create their resumes and have questions about what to include or how to summarize their experiences are encouraged to attend the workshop, Kistner said.

The essentials for designing resume cover letters also will be addressed, Kistner said.

"This is an essential part of the job search," he said. Students are required to bring a copy of their resume to the job fair, which is scheduled for Feb. 1 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in both ballrooms of the Union.

So far, about 100 employers, mostly from the Midwest, are registered to participate, Kistner said.

An orientation seminar designed to acquaint job searchers with details of the job fair will be held at noon Thursday in the Rathskeller South Balcony of the Union.

Thursday's session, "Job Fair Orientation: Prepare for Success!" will teach students what they need to do before February's fair, Kistner said.

The workshop will include a video presentation and an orientation sheet that shows students how to approach employers and what to expect from the fair.

Simpson asks to talk to jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Murder defendant O.J. Simpson asked Monday for a one-minute recess before his jurors, a stunning twist in a day dominated by attorneys scrapping over last-minute evidence the defense asked on prosecutors.

Defense attorneys surprised the prosecution with a list of 34 new witnesses and a tape of police walking through blood at the murder scene. They also offered evidence to alibi for the first time — a witness who saw Simpson's distinctive white Ford Bronco outside his home at a time when the prosecution alleges he was two miles away killing his ex-wife and her friend.

Simpson's attorneys additionally suggested court papers that police may have moved evidence as well as the bloody glove that was found near the bodies of Nicole Simpson and Ronald Goldman last month. County District Attorney Marcia Clark said the new evidence "trial by ambush" and she was "absolutely shocked" by the last-minute disclosure. "This is a willful attempt to deprive the people of a fair trial," she said.

Her colleague, William Hodgman, asked for a week's continuance to study the new evidence and witness list, which includes actress Tawny Kitaen, local TV reporter Tracie Savage, Los Angeles Police Chief Willie Williams and author Lawrence Schiller, who is writing Simpson's book.

"The truth, or part of the truth, has been hidden from us by the defense," Hodgman said.

Defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. responded with equal indignation.

"I am absolutely appalled that the prosecution comes here and says they are unprepared," he said. "They see a few charts from us and become frightened and want to run away and hide for a week." Superior Court Judge Lance Ito was tense during the exchange, interrupting attorneys at times to say, "You're wasting my time" and "Do you expect me to believe that?"

The defense's new disclosures showed how vigorously they plan to challenge the prosecution's physical evidence. A newsreel videotape obtained by the defense shows police officers walking through blood while the bodies lie nearby under sheets.

Motor Voter violation stems federal lawsuit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department sued three states Monday to force them to comply with a federal law easing voter registration.

The states are California, Illinois and Pennsylvania. Justice officials decided at the last minute against suing South Carolina and Michigan, opting instead to continue monitoring their compliance.

The 1993 National Voter Registration Act, passed with solid Democratic support over considerable Republican opposition, requires all states to provide voter registration through the driver licensing process, through the mail and at state social service offices.

"Congress has the authority to regulate federal elections," Attorney General Janet Reno said. "We now must use the authority that Congress gave us to enforce it."

"This is a common sense law that already is making voting more available to all Americans," Reno said. "States have seen tremendous increases in the number of people registering to vote in the 23 days since the law took effect."

Neither Illinois nor Pennsylvania passed any legislation or took administrative action to comply with the law, the department said.

U of I swimmers lose case

Could affect possible lawsuit at Eastern

WASHINGTON (AP) – The U.S. Supreme Court Monday sank an appeal by a group of male swimmers who wanted the University of Illinois to reinstate their team, eliminated to save money although the school kept the women's swim team.

The court, without comment, turned down arguments by the former men's team members that they are the victims of reverse sex discrimination.

The decision could have an effect on a possible lawsuit against Eastern.

Attorney Bob Smith, foster father of Panther wrestler Tim Fix, threatened to file a lawsuit against the university earlier this month, concerning Eastern's decision to eliminate the wrestling team and men's swim team.

"It's disappointing but not surprising," said Bill Kelley, a University of Illinois senior and the captain of the swim team that was eliminated.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 bars sex bias in federally funded schools. Federal rules allow schools to have single-sex athletic teams but require "equal athletic opportunity" for both sexes.

In 1982, the federal Education Department said the University of Illinois denied equal athletic opportunity to female students, but found no violation of Title IX so long as the school remedied the situation.

Facing a major athletic-budget deficit in 1993, university officials dropped four teams – men's swimming, men's fencing, and men's and women's diving. The women's swimming team was kept so the school could avoid violating Title IX.

Members of the men's swim team sued. A federal judge ruled for the university, as did the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. There is no requirement for parallel teams, the appeals court said, noting that football is not offered for women.

Schools may consider gender in deciding which athletic teams to cut so that "in instances where overall athletic opportunities decrease, the actual opportunities available to the under-represented gender do not," the 7th Circuit court said.

Ballard

to get some type of program firmly established here."

Since the Mid-Continent Conference does not have enough schools with women's soccer teams, Ballard's squad will compete as an independent. Down the road, though, Ballard would like to latch on to a conference.

So far, Ballard says about 14 ladies have been hitting the weights in preparation for next fall. Besides adding "about 10 to 15" high school prize recruits, Ballard hopes to bring in three or four junior college transfers who've already had a taste of collegiate competition in women's soccer.

Athletic Director Bob McBee says he has nothing but high expectations for Ballard and Eastern's new women's soccer program.

"He's an energetic recruiter who's already developed two collegiate programs," McBee said of Ballard. "He's an experienced coach, and he's already made a lot of strides recruiting in Illinois."

For female Eastern students who may have been kicking around the idea of playing collegiate soccer, Ballard says to reach him at 581-7062 if interested in playing for the Lady Panthers' team next fall.

"You'd think out of 5,000 or so girls on Eastern's campus, there might be one or two that would be interested in soccer, especially if they're a player," Ballard said. "Hopefully, we can pick up a couple of those sleepers or diamonds in the rough."

Women's team completes toughest part of schedule trapping up their road trip of the season with an 80-72 victory over Valparaiso, the Lady Panthers have completed the toughest portion of their Mid-Conference schedule with a 4-3 record.

The remaining 11 games of their conference schedule, all of them will be road games.

Of these teams like Central Connecticut, (Missouri-Kansas City and Troy State) snuck up and got on the road, hey they've got to win and come here and head coach John Barah Probst is headed to the rematch with greater enthusiasm and wait to play them," Probst said. "We are not out to get them and we will be prepared."

The road games start with Kansas City on Feb. 20 and Central Connecticut on Feb. 20.

The two road games the Lady Panthers lost, they had to fly out to Central Connecticut, then fly to Troy, Ala. two days later - a much greater traveling distance than any road trip last season when all of the Mid-Con teams were located in the Midwest.

"When you have to go out to Central Connecticut then turn around and play your next opponent down in Alabama, that's a little unusual and it makes for a long travel day the next day," Klein said.

Klein said that the remaining road trips are not too unusual compared to other conferences.

The Lady Panthers have given up an average of 60.1 points per game, which is tops in the conference. But in their three conference losses, they have given up 74 to Missouri-Kansas City, 71 to Central Connecticut and 72 to Troy State.

"We're a team that really needs to hold our opponents to around 55 to 60 points to be in the hunt for a win," Klein said. "Until we can take better care of the basketball throughout the entire 40 minutes, do a better job of executing offensively and start being a more consistent team offensively, our defense is going to have to keep us in games."

Against Valparaiso the Lady Panthers gave up only 15 turnovers in their 80-72 victory and they confused the Valpo defense by using a zone-oriented offense.

Western Illinois and Valpo combined have only three losses - and both lost to Eastern.

On the other hand, Eastern has lost to Missouri-Kansas City (2-4), Troy State (4-3) and Central Connecticut (2-4).

"It shows that our team is young but it has a lot of potential," Klein said. "I think as the year goes on we'll stabilize a little."

"We continue to play hard and give our best effort," Johnson said. "Brian Bestor playing 40 minutes at point guard is our stabilizer and he has played well."

Frankford contributes in first season

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Associate sports editor

In the men's basketball media guide under Eric Frankford, it says "with veteran players ahead of him, he will likely play on a limited basis his first year."

How quickly things change.

Because of early season injuries, Frankford has gone from substitute to starter in his first year of basketball at the collegiate level.

The freshman forward from Bethalto has been a pleasant surprise, starting in 13 of the Panthers' 15 games in relief of senior Andre Rodriguez, who was hurt in the first game of the season.

Frankford, just 18 years old, said that the transition to starting was tough, but it was made easier by his teammates.

"You can't expect that coming in," Frankford said of his quick move to the starting lineup. "It was a lot harder than I thought but everyone on the team was good about it."

Frankford currently leads the team in field goal percentage (.609) and blocked shots (32) and is second on the team in rebounds per game (5.5) behind Michael Slaughter's 7.6.

According to assistant coach George Morgan, Frankford is getting better as the season progresses, but the freshman is not the kind of player that would be satisfied.

"Eric is a very self-motivated person," Morgan said. "He's his own worst critic."

Frankford has definitely had his ups and downs this season.

Saturday against Valparaiso, he was bullied down low on defense against Valparaiso's 6-foot-10-inch center Chris Ensminger, who was 7-for-13 from the field for 19 points. Ensminger also pulled down a game high 13 rebounds.

But Frankford's best game of the season was against probably the largest opponent he faced all year.

Panthers limo to fifth place in conference

What a difference two weeks can make.

On Jan. 9, the Eastern men's basketball team was tied for second place in the Mid-Continent Conference.

Now, after conference losses to Connecticut State, Troy State, Valparaiso, the Panthers (7-8 overall, 4-4 conference) find themselves tied, along with Missouri-Kansas City, for fifth place in the Mid-Con.

The team's record has also dipped to 1-5 for the first time this season since it lost in the Aloha Classic to East Carolina in mid-December.

• There may have been a reason the Panthers have lost two close games to Central Connecticut (93-92 in overtime) and Valparaiso (78-74). Eastern is tied for eighth in the conference in free-throw percentage.

The Panthers have made only 20.4 percent of their 100 free-throw attempts, giving them a .627 percentage. Senior guard Derrick Landrus seems to be the only bright spot for the team, leading the team in charity stripe, as he is tied for ninth in the Mid-Con with a .716 percentage (49-for-68).

• After beginning the season in 11th place of the Mid-Con, Troy State has surged to third place in the conference with a 10-5 record.

The Trojans, who have an overall record of 15-10, have won three straight games. Troy State's victims include Valparaiso (93-76), Eastern (96-74) and Northeastern Illinois (84-60).

Troy State leads the Mid-Con in scoring with 91.7 points-per-game but also has the most points in the conference with 1,000.

Youngsters strong at track invitational

By CHET PIOTROWSKI
Staff writer

For the men's and women's track teams, underclassmen leadership and strong intensity levels showed Saturday in the end results.

The freshmen for the men's team came prepared to compete.

"There was a lot of depth in each race. It was a good day," said coach John McInerney. "In general, on both the men's and women's sides, it just was a good step up competitively and intensity-wise from what we had the week before."

On the men's side, freshman Jason Waldschmidt placed fourth in the shot put with a toss of 47.25 feet, and also placed third in the 35-pound weight throw.

Mike McBride, another freshman, placed third in the 1,600-meter run with a time of 4:25.85 minutes.

Freshman George Wilson placed second in the 55-meter dash with a time of 6.51 seconds and also placed third in the 200-meter dash in 22.45 seconds.

Sophomores Steve Cunningham, Joe Rigaud, Mike Quinlan, and Steve Weiss did exceptionally well in their respective races.

Cunningham finished first in the 1,600-meter run in 4:23.33 minutes, and Rigaud fell into second place with a time of 7.92 seconds in the 55-meter hurdles. Quinlan ended up in a three-way tie for third place in the pole vault with a height of 15 feet. Tied with Quinlan were seniors Eric Postma and Bryan Rebhan.

Sophomore Tim Thompson placed first in the high jump with a jump of 6-feet-9-inches.

In the 600-yard dash, sophomore Kert McAfee

Ballard begins building women's soccer squad

By JOHN FERAK
Staff writer

Whether he's successful or not, Steve Ballard will always have a footnote in Eastern's athletic history.

That's because Ballard takes over as Eastern's first-ever women's soccer coach.

And although he inherits a raw and inexperienced program which, until recently, only competed on the club soccer circuit, Ballard hopes it won't take too long to build a solid foundation and tradition.

"I think there's several girls on Eastern's campus who can contribute to this program," said Ballard, who arrived on campus at the beginning of the semester. "My goal is to have 20 to 25 girls on the team come next fall."

To accomplish this, Ballard thinks he needs to recruit, and recruit heavily, by tapping into the Chicagoland and St. Louis high school pool of top notch women's soccer talent.

"Recruiting will be a key element," Ballard said. "And we'll need a lot of dedication from the ladies we already have."

Before arriving in Charleston, Ballard coached at Averett College in Danville, Va. the past four years and served as the men's and women's coach at Elon College in North Carolina from 1978 to 1987. Despite starting Eastern's soccer program from scratch, Ballard has lofty goals for the upcoming fall season.

"I'd like to see us get to the .500 mark," Ballard, who sports a lifetime record of 100-100 at the women's collegiate level. "If you win nine out of 18 games, I'd consider that a success."

Achieving an even win-loss record isn't easy, either. Ballard's team will play against the likes of Marquette University, Loyola University in Chicago, the University of Arkansas, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and the University of Kentucky.

"We'll find out how good we are next fall," Ballard said. "The tough schedule is going to be a challenge to me in terms of recruiting. We're going to need a lot of help."
